Verney Family.

Notes on the Windows in St. Margaret's Chapel, Compton Verney, Warwickshire.

The East window is of three lights, the central round-headed, those on either side with square lintels. The North light contains a large figure of St. Leonard, with pastoral staff, book and handcuffs, and below, the inscription:

S. Leonardus.

Beneath is a small square compartment with the figure of a man in a tabard kneeling before an altar, with the figure of St. Christopher. A book is open before him on a faldstool, and bears the words:

Sanctus Xtophorus
Ora pro nobis . . . .

The tabard bears quarterly: 1, Gules three crosses sarcelly or, a chief vairy ermine and ermines, Verney; 2, Azure three stags trippant or, Greene; 3, Argent three escutcheons sable and a bordure gules, Loudham; 4, Ermine, on a bend sable, three escallops argent. This represents in all probability Richard Verney who died 1526–27.

The centre light represents the Crucifixion. The arms of the thieves pass over the cross-bar of their crosses, an angel carries away the soul of the penitent thief, a crimson demon that of the impenitent. The Centurion, mounted on a white horse, has above him, on an escrol, the words:

Vere fil . . . .

Below are three compartments with arms and inscriptions. A (on the dexter). Quarterly: 1, Gules on a bend between six crosslets fitchée argent, the augmentation of Flodden, Howard, Earl of Nottingham; 2, Gules three lions passant guardant argent (or), a label of three points argent, Brotherton; 3, Chequy or and azure, Warrenne, Earl of

The South light contains a figure of St. Giles with crosier, book, and stag transfixed with an arrow; below, in a square compartment, kneels a lady in a heraldic cloak and lappet head-dress, with four daughters. The cloak bears these arms: 1 and 4, Argent on a bend gules three martlets (or winged vert), DANVERS; 2 and 3, Argent on a fess azure, between three martlets sable, as many pierced mullets of the field . . . . (?)

The book open on the faldstool bears the words: Maria . . . . Gloria Deo et honor, while before her is an image of the Blessed Virgin Mary and Child.

This represents Anna, daughter of Will: Danvers, who married Richard Verney, who died 1526–27.

There are three windows on each side of the chapel. Those on the South side, numbering from the East Westwards, are counted as 1, 2, 3; those on the North, from West to East, 4, 5, 6.

WINDOW No. 1.

The window contains six scenes, and below them a figure between two shields:

Scene 1. Two figures, a male and female, in monastic habit and aureoles about their heads, are represented kneeling before the Pope, who is vested in cope and train, grouped about him are many figures. It perhaps represents one of the embassies sent by St. Catherine of Siena to the Holy See.

Scene 2. An elderly man and others seated at table, which is spread as for a meal. A girl by the fire turns a spit, and a servant pours out wine. Companion scene to No. 1, but obscure.

Scene 3. The Annunciation.

Scene 4. The birth of St. John the Baptist.

Scene 5. The Adoration of the Magi.

Scene 6. The Presentation in the Temple.

Below is the figure of a lady kneeling at a faldstool, on which is open the Book of Common Prayer at the words:

WINDOW No. 6.

The window contains a representation of Our Lord's Ascension, and below it a kneeling figure between two crests.

The inscription runs: SPECTANTIBUS EIO SURSUM SUBLEVATUS EST CŒLUMQUE SUB NUBE DUXIT CORAM OCULIS ACT CAP. I VERS. 9. 1634.

Crest: A Saracen's head couped at the shoulders, and crowned all proper, for WILLOUGHBY.

In the centre. A mother, two sons and three daughters, kneeling before an altar, the lady in embroidered gown and short upper sleeves, the sons in doublets, red and blue breeches and purple hose. In the window of the chapel are the arms of TAME. In another window, Our Lord's Resurrection. Below:

ALICE THAME LADY VERNEY.

INSCRIPTIONS IN THE CHAPEL.

Under the South wall, between the stalls and the altar pace, is a marble slab inlaid with a figure in brass of a lady dressed in a tight-fitting robe, over which is worn a loose kirtle and linen head-dress; in the sinister corner of the slab is one of the four evangelistic symbols, viz., the lion of St. Mark, the remainder are lost. Over the head of the figure is a shield of arms, viz.: Quarterly: . . . two bars gules, ODINGSALE; impaling, quarterly: 1, VERNEY; 2, GREEN; 3, LOUDHAM, viz., three inescutcheons without a bordure; 4 (defaced), VERNEY. Below the figure is this inscription:

> Off yeor charyte pray for the sole off Anne Odyngsal off Mayster Edwarde Odyngsale, of Ygyngeton, dorter of M. Richarde Verney Esquyer, ye whyche deptyde ye yere of o^r Lord mccccxxiii on whose sole Jhu have my.

To the East, by side of the altar pace, is a slab of marble with figures in brass of a male and female, and Collins adds ("Peerage," vol. vi. p. 399) nine sons and five daughters; the whole enclosed within marginal inscriptions, with the evangelistic symbols at the corners and a shield of arms.

The male figure is bareheaded, but otherwise in full armour; the lady wears a tight-fitting under-robe, with loose kirtle over it, showing through its folds the clasp of her girdle, the boddice has very large turned-down collar and cuffs, she also wears a lappet head-dress of good design. The shield has lost nearly all the enamel, but was of eight quarters, only two of which can be determined, they are: 1, VERNEY; 2, GREEN. The marginal inscription is much damaged, but is restored from Collin's account (see opposite).

Off your charitie pray for the soules of (Richard Verney Esquire and Anne his wife, which Richard) depted out of this psent worlde the xxviii day of this monethe of September In the yere of oure Lord God mccccxxvii.

The above Anne was daughter of William Danvers, Esquire.

On the North side of the chapel, near the ends of the stall, is another slab inlaid with the figure of a male in armour with his head bare, the hands are in the usual attitude of prayer, the feet unusually far apart. Below is this inscription:

HEERE LIES GEORGE VERNEY
OF COMPTON ESQ^R SONNE OF S^R
RICHARD VERNEY KNIGHT AND HUSBAND OF JANE THE DAUGHTER OF WILLIAM LUCY OF CHARLCOT,
ESQ^R BY WHOME HEE HAD ONE

KINGDOM OF GOD.

In the centre of the chapel stands a fine altar tomb, with recumbent effigies of Sir Richard Verney and Margaret his wife. The knight lies on the North, his head is bare and rests on an embroidered cushion, his feet are cased in greaves and sollerets, and placed straight down with no animal to rest against; over his gorget and cuisses appear the lace-edged collar and cuffs. The sword-belt crosses the shirt of taces diagonally, the sword hanging on the left side. The arms rest by his side, the hands touching taces. Parts of the armour and the handle of the sword have been gilded. The lady is attired in a linen kirtle, much plaited about the neck, over which appears a necklace of pearls with a pendant, above this is a tight-fitting robe and boddice, and from over head depends the long veil of widowhood, this reached to her feet and is looped up to the right of her boddice, and fastened by a brooch. The left hand rests upon her breast, the other by her side. The effigies lie on a mensa of black marble, inscribed:

HIC JACENT RICHARDUS VERNEY MILES QUI OBIIT
VII° DIE AUG^TI A° DŌ MDCXXX ET ÆTAT. SUÆ LXVII ET
